GREATER ACREAGE OF GRASSES SOWN IN M'CRACKEN CO.

Farmers Do Not Like to Dig Down for Cash to Buy Corn
in the Winter.

Late Spring Causes Rush of Planting Crops.

WINTER TURF OATS BOUGHT

A greater acreage of hay, timothy and red top will be sown this year by the farmers of McCracken county and adjoining counties than ever before. All of the farmers remember what prices they had to pay for corn last winter when the crib had been emptied, and they are preparing to avoid another deep dig into the pocketbooks by sowing grasses. A feed dealer today said that his business had been heavier this summer than ever before, and that the crop of hay and timothy in the purchase would be at least one-third heavier this year.

In attributing the increase to the high prices of corn, he added that for the past three or four years there had been late springs and when good weather came there was everything on the farm to be planted in a few weeks. Help has been hard to secure and the farmer has not had an opportunity to plant all of the corn he needed for his stock without a sacrifice of his other products. Hay and timothy is a food for stock that is sown in the late summer and fall, and after the work is over there is no more bother until time to harvest it next summer. By this means the farmer has more time to devote to his garden products.

Winter Turf Oats.

Resides doing a good business selling timothy, the seed dealers have been rushing selling winter turf oats, seeds that were unknown in McCracken county until a few years ago. Winter turf oats are sown in the fall like wheat, and then the work is done until the next spring. The stock is better than the old oats that were sown in the spring while the farmer had his rush of work on.

Corn in McCracken county will be late this year, although the farmers' faces are wreathed with smiles over the rains of the past two weeks, and they say that many ears of corn have been made by the showers. Many of the fields were drowned, and even now if an early frost comes there is a prospect of a short crop for McCracken county. Farmers planted a heavy acreage of corn this year, but probably there will be no more than an average yield on account of the late spring.

Barbecue at Cecil.

A barbecue was given at Cecil today and a large crowd of Paducahans were out. Many candidates were present, and shaking hands with the voters, and making stump speeches.

DRIVEN TO ISLAND.

Man and Two Children Rescued After Spend Night.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 14.—Leo Hynds and two children, living on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river, reported a terrible experience in the hailstorm that swept this section Monday night.

Hynds and his children were in a snubboat when the storm came up and the wind blew them upon an island several miles above the city, where they were forced to spend the night and were not able to get away for about twelve hours. The children were furnished with hunger when rescued by a steamboat.

JAP STEAMER IS SEIZED.

Chinese Authorities Will Cause Another International Tangle.

London, Aug. 14.—Another cloud has arisen between China and Japan, according to a special dispatch received here from Hong Kong, owing to the seizure at Chinkon by the Chinese authorities of a steamer having on board 10,000 rifles and 2,000,000 cartridges.

Japanese Merchants have protested, claiming that this cargo belongs to them, and they threaten to make another international question out of the incident. The seizure is similar to that of the Japanese steamer Tetsu Maru in February of this year.

Four More Indictments Expected From Calloway County Grand Jury Against Night Riders on East Side

Jake Ellis is Released on Bond
Until Next Term of Circuit Court at Murray—Judge
Wells Will Speak.

Murray, Ky., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Four more indictments for night riding will be returned by the Calloway county jury today. These indictments, it is reported, will be for burning smoot Hendrick's barn in the eastern part of the county. It will be remembered that Will Ingram, a state's witness, testified in the Jake Ellis case that he met with the party at Center Ridge church and they rode to Hendrick's farm and burned his barn. He named Young Garland, Kelsie Kirk, Hob Hunsen and Ed Thompson as members of the band. Efforts to indict state's witnesses for minor offenses fell to the ground. It is reported that as soon as Commonwealth's Attorney Smith got wind of the purpose he stopped it.

Jake Ellis, in whose case yesterday the jury disagreed, was released today on bond. Ellis' attorney, J. C. Speight, said: "I am sorry there was not a verdict one way or the other. Attorneys for the commonwealth believe it was a victory, especially since the jury stood six to six at first. It is said the defense expected an acquittal until the new evidence came in. Since the trial and the testimony of Joe Hyatt, others have been heard to talk inadvertently, and the commonwealth has some new evidence."

Law and Order Campaign.
Judge A. J. G. Wells is not taking any part in politics this fall, but today he announced a list of speaking dates and he will stump the county talking in the interest of law and order.

Minister is Victim.
Murray, Ky., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—"We be unto me if I preach not the gospel" may be a biblical injunction that will be seriously considered by at least one Calloway county minister if the present reign of lawlessness and intimidation which has even affected ministers of the gospel continues.

According to a gentleman of unquestioned reputation who was in Murray yesterday, an aged Baptist minister has been forced to resign office, threats were made to drag him from the pulpit in another church and an engagement to hold a protracted meeting was canceled in another instance because the good man has on different occasions admonished his brethren to refrain from night riding.

His first trouble occurred while pastor of a church in the northeastern

THAW WILL BE FREE.
New York, Aug. 14.—Eugene Phillips, former district attorney, expressed his belief that Harry Thaw will be free within a month. He says as Thaw is not convicted of a crime, he can be freed on habeas corpus if taken out of the state. If Thaw is needed in the bankruptcy proceedings in Pittsburgh, he will be taken there by federal authorities and become free as soon as he leaves New York.

portion of the county. He preached a sermon against night riding, which caused so much dissension among his members that he resigned. Later at the conclusion of a successful meeting at a church in the southeastern portion of the county the minister took occasion in the course of a sermon to his converts to advise them against night riding. It is said that men left the church and discussed dragging the minister from the pulpit and whipping him. The latest experience of the minister with night riding settlement was when he received information from the officers of the church where he had been engaged to conduct a revival that he was no longer wanted and the engagement canceled. This church was in the section that a witness in the Jake Ellis trial testified a church was used as an arsenal or storage place for the guns that were used by night riders on the different raids.

REFUSES TO PAY BANK INSURANCE AGAINST ROBBERY

Not entirely satisfied with the Hand-dana bank robbery case, the insurance company, which had burglary insurance on the bank has refused to pay the loss sustained by the bank last spring, for which Sam Pettis, John Hasker, Ernest Edmundson and Will Hunsden were charged to trial by Wick Hife this week. Attorneys Hendrick & Corbett returned from Wexford last night, where the criminal case was continued until the January term of court. This civil suit of the bank against the insurance company also was continued.

WALL OF FLAME ENVELOPES CROWD AT BALLOON ASCENSION, BURNING SCORES

Catastrophe Attends Lighting of Match Near Gas Bag in London.

London, Aug. 14.—The balloon of Captain Lovelace, an American, exploded at the Franco-British exposition while being inflated for an ascension. Two were killed and a dozen frightfully burned. Scores were trampled in the panic that followed. By-standers lighted matches and the gas bag exploded. A wall of flame leaped out enveloping the crowd. Scores fell unconscious. Before rescuers removed them two died. Several were fatally burned. The balloon shed is burned and it is feared other bodies are in the ruins. Lovelace was badly hurt. The explosion rocked the exposition like an earthquake.

Successful Flight.

Brill, Aug. 14.—The new Parosol dirigible balloon sailed over the city for nearly three hours, carrying five passengers. The machine was under perfect control, but military engineers postponed a longer flight until the machine is perfectly adjusted.

Bold Robbery Attempted

An attempt was made to rob the store and pawnshop of Ike Cohen, 106 South Second street, last night. It is alleged, by Will Patterson, colored. Some one hurled a large brick through the plate glass window, but before he could pick up articles from the window a shot was fired by Cohen and the vandal made a fast run from danger. Patrolmen Brennan, Cross, Whittenore and Franklin heard the shot and rushed in on four directions. Patterson was cornered in a stable loft and placed under arrest.

HIS CURLY HAIR.

Burlington, N. J., Aug. 11.—Alfred Smith, five years old, fell from a merry-go-round and his curly hair caught on a spike protruding from the platform. The boy was dragged along the floor until the curls were pulled from behind his ears. Frank Spangola jumped to the rescue and was caught on the spike. His leg was broken and his arms mangled.

PLOT KILLING OF KING AND EMPEROR DURING MEETING

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 14.—Police declare a plot to assassinate King Edward of England, and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, during the conference at Innsbruck was narrowly averted through arrest of two anarchists at Langdon. The men were armed with revolvers and daggers. They were caught en route to Innsbruck. Guards have been doubled since the discovery of the plot.

Little Boy Dies

Mr. W. E. Amyett, of 612 Adams street, received word yesterday from Memphis of the death of his nephew, Harold Hoffman, 8 years old. His death was due to congestion and occurred yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. H. A. Amyett, Mr. Amyett's mother, left last night for Memphis.

KENTUCKY BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS WILL DISAPPEAR

New Independent Rating Bureau Will Take Its Place in State.

Mr. Rose Receives Notice to Wind Up Work.

ABANDONED IN OTHER STATES

Forestalling any possible legislative antagonism, the Kentucky board of underwriters has notified its agents throughout the state, and Mr. C. C. Rose in this city, that at the end of the fiscal year in November, its existence will terminate. Noting the action of many state legislatures in making it unlawful for insurance companies to rate their own business, in common, the Kentucky board of underwriters anticipated similar legislation from the Kentucky legislature and will turn over the business to an independent rating bureau.

For fifteen years the Kentucky board of underwriters, an organization created and supported by the insurance companies in the state, has rated the fire risks its members wrote, and Mr. C. C. Rose has been the agent of the board for eight years in Paducah. Whether he will be employed by the new independent rating bureau that will come into existence, following the dissolution of the Kentucky board of underwriters, is not known now, but his long experience here and the eminent satisfaction he has given in the position, practically insure that he will continue in the work.

In many states the insurance companies maintained their own rating boards until legislation made them unlawful, but the Kentucky companies are departing from that precedent, and while no active hostility has been shown to the system in this state, they thought it expedient to adopt the independent system before they did so involuntarily. The business of the Kentucky board of underwriters is to inspect every building or stock on which insurance was desired, and fix the rate at which the companies in the organization could write the insurance. The rate is determined by the height of the building, thickness of walls, exposure from exterior fires and other points.

This rate, ascertained by Mr. Rose, was submitted to the state central office, and ratified, if correct, and was then promulgated among the insurance agents. Every policy the agents wrote must be reported daily to Mr. Rose who sees that it was written on the rate he made. With a rating bureau entirely independent of the insurance companies, inspections will be made and the rate promulgated as before, but no daily reports would be made to the bureau's local agent. The difference in a nut shell will be, that the companies, instead of writing policies on rates made by their own agents, will write on rates made by an independent and disinterested bureau.

While no tinge of suspicion has been attached to the operations of the Kentucky board of underwriters, it is believed that the insuring public will be better satisfied if the rating is done by an independent bureau, which, having no interest in the companies, might be supposed to act with absolute impartiality. But no wild cat rating agency would find support from the companies, as they will accept rates only from a bureau they believe is competent to fix rates and they will pay for this service like business enterprises pay for the mercantile agency service.

Fortune is Saved From Swindler by Losing Six Hundred Dollars in Scheme—Girl Would-be Victim

White Haired Rascal Proposed to take Wealth of Pittsburgh Heiress Through Her Confidence in His Honesty.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14.—By allowing himself to be swindled out of $600 and then landing Moses Phillips in jail in New York on a charge of running a "brace" faro game, Melville H. Moxley, a well known business man of Pittsburgh, saved his sister-in-law, Miss Frederica Bosch, from being fleeced out of $40,000 or $50,000 of the fortune she inherited at the death of her father, T. H. Bosch, less than a year ago, who was one of the best known paper manufacturers of the country, with offices in New York and Chicago, whose estate was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Living his age, venerable appearance and social position as a cloak, posing as a retired judge of position and means and thus gaining admission to the country's best society, Phillips is accused of using the confidence reposed in him to fleece those with whom he came in contact socially.

One of the letters written by Phillips to the girl says:

"There is a bare possibility of my going to Europe in August on important business matters. I wish you would come to New York before I leave. I could give you an opportunity to realize $30,000 or $50,000 without the investment of a dollar in a legitimate transaction. This may sound like a Manichaean tale, but I am not talking through my hat. I regret that I cannot give you details. It is strictly confidential."

Miss Bosch laid the whole case before her brother-in-law and he advised her to have nothing to do with it, but after some further correspondence with Phillips, Moxley decided to risk $600 to determine just what the game was in which Phillips was trying to ensnare Miss Bosch.

ENGINEER FALLS UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS ENGINE ROOM

William H. Grainger, engineer of the towboat Harth, was overcome with heat last night at 10 o'clock and has been unconscious ever since. The Harth was tied up with the upper floor of the West Kentucky Coal company in the Tennessee river, when Engineer Grainger fell unconscious in the engine room and was there several hours before he was discovered by members of the crew. He was brought down to the foot of Campbell street this morning and was removed to the home of his brother, Capt. H. D. Grainger, 1223 South Sixth street, in Guy Nance & Son's ambulance. Dr. J. T. Reddick was called to attend Mr. Grainger.

Mr. Grainger's family are visiting in Caseyville at present. They were notified of Mr. Grainger's condition and will be home on the first train. Mr. Grainger is a middle aged man and is well known on the river. His condition is serious and his recovery is doubtful.

Boy Kills Sister

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Walter Mayton, 9 years old, killed his 7-year-old sister while playing with a shotgun today.

Alleged Housebreaker

Dick Oakley, colored, was arrested this morning by Patrol Driver Terrell on a charge of housebreaking. It is alleged that Oakley is the person that broke into the store of A. Bauer, Ninth and Washington streets, and took a pistol and other articles of merchandise. His trial was continued in police court today.

John C. Wiggins

Mr. John C. Wiggins died at 10 o'clock Thursday night with congestion at the ripe old age of 84 years, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. R. A. Foster, seven miles from the city on the Blandville road. He leaves five children: Mrs. R. L. Foster, of the county; Mrs. Henry Lovelace, of Paducah; Mrs. Florence Reimer, of Los Angeles, Cal.; and Ellie and Tom Wiggins. He was a member of the Methodist church and a Mason. The remains will be buried in the family cemetery in the county at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

BRADSHAW CREEK ROBBED OF SMELL BY IMPROVEMENT

Culvert Will be Built From Jefferson to Broadway and Fill Made.

New Street Will be Opened
Through Property.

DESIRED FOR BUILDING

Solving one of the most difficult problems the health department has had to face, an agreement practically has been reached between M. H. Welkel and the city, whereby a culvert will be built from Broadway to Jefferson street, along Bradshaw's creek, which will drain that section of the city and eliminate a standing unsanitary condition.

This culvert will enable Mr. Welkel to fill in the hollow there without stopping the natural flow of water in rains and high water, and thus stagnant pools will be prevented, and as residents in that section have had their sewers emptying into the creek, disconnected, the foul odors that formerly made the atmosphere there unhealthful, will disappear. The block of ground, so reclaimed, will be filled in and residences will be built, adding to the desirability of that section as a residence district.

As proposed by Mr. Welkel, he will construct the culvert and deed to the city sufficient ground to open a street through from Broadway to Jefferson street, and would be willing for the city to remunerate him by absolving him from taxes on the property until his expenses in making the improvements have been repaid. City Solicitor James Campbell, Jr., has decided that this could not be done legally, but the city could refund him the taxes from year to year. The council has not ratified the agreement, but some arrangement will be made, as it is considered a reasonable proposition and an opportune time to make the improvement.

If the new street is opened, the culvert would be under the street running diagonally from Broadway to Jefferson street. It would be an arched culvert built of brick and concrete. When the river is high the hollows on either side of the fill there could be filled or emptied without hindrance, as the river rises and falls. For many years Bradshaw's creek has been a problem to the health department and it will welcome any improvement that will drain the water away from that district.

Bandits Outwitted.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—The new Parosol light holdup of Messenger's saloon was frustrated by George McGraw, who shot W. Fay, an alleged bandit. Three men entered the saloon with drawn revolvers and attempted to rifle the cash register. McGraw fired, wounding Fay. The others fled.

SUNDAY SHAVING A LUXURY.

It is Not a Necessity, Says Judge Parker, and All Barber Shops Will Close on Sunday in Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—In the circuit court here Judge Parker held that Sunday shaving is not a necessity, and all barber shops will hereafter be closed on that day.

GROWING CIGARETTE HABIT CLAIMS 25,000,000 SLAVES.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Government statistics just issued show an enormous growth of the cigarette habit in the United States during the last year, when 56,402,336,113 "paper pipes" were smoked. Counting the number of men and boy smokers at 25,000,000, this gives an average per smoker of 2,256, and when it is considered that there are thousands of smokers who use tobacco in some other form, it brings the average for the cigarette smoker up very high.

PHYSICIAN DIES UNDER PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Dr. Emerson Wheat, a physician, aged 45 years, was found dead in his home at Nineteenth and Diamond streets in one of the most pretentious residential sections of the city, under startling circumstances. Beside the body, which lay half-dressed upon a couch, two women were found by the police praying for his resurrection and muttering strange incantations. Though physicians said the man had been dead at least 48 hours, Mrs. Fannie Smith, a professional spiritist, and Miss Florence Beckman, who were arrested by the police, were the women. Mrs. Smith said she had been treating Dr. Wheat by giving magnetic treatment.

LIQUIDATION OF OLD FRENCH CO.

That Was to Build Panama Canal Was Completed.

Was Formed in 1870 and Went Into Bankruptcy Ten Years Later—
Many Scandals Followed

COLLAPSE OF THE COMPANY

Paris, Aug. 11.—Liquidation of the old Panama Canal company, which has been going on since 1889, was completed when the Tribunal of the Seine authorized a last payment to the creditors of one per cent and issued a decree discharging the receiver.

In 1878 a concession was obtained from Colombia by the French Association for the construction of a canal across the Isthmus.

This concession was purchased in 1879 for $2,000,000 by a company headed by De Lesseps. The work of excavating proceeded until 1889 when the company went into bankruptcy and disbanded. Great scandals followed the collapse of the company.

Extensions of time for the completion of the canal were granted to the liquidators of the company, the last naming October 31, 1910, as the time.

The new company was then organized but failed to do the work and in 1903 in a treaty between Colombia and the United States the latter country was to cut the canal. The American congress ratified this treaty but the Colombian congress rejected it.

A revelation in Colombia resulted in the Isthmus falling into the hands of the new republic of Panama and that government gave the United States the right to do the work.

Obstacles were thrown in the way, but finally in 1904, in consideration of $40,000,000 the United States was able to take all rights in the premises.

Cy Young's Record Game.
Boston, Aug. 14.—Nearly 20,000 persons from all over the New England states attended the benefit game for Denton Tammish (Cy) Young, of Peoli, O., the Boston American league baseball team's veteran pitcher, at the American league grounds. Three slaver loving cups, a traveling bag and two big floral pieces were presented to Young. The largest cup was given to Mr. Young by his many admirers through a local newspaper. Lieutenant Governor Draper made the presentation. Manager Flander Jones, of the Chicago American club, presented a large silver cup, given by the players of the American league. One other cup was given by a friend and the traveling bag was given by the umpires of the American league. The Boston National league club gave a big floral offering.

The main attraction besides "Cy" himself was a game between Boston and a team of star players picked from other American league clubs. The All Stars won by a score of 3 to 2.

Fulton Wins Again.
Fulton, Ky., Aug. 14.—Brownsville went down again today and this fall was due to the superb pitching of Downs for Fulton. Downs let the hard hitting Brownsville, Tenn., team off without a run and six widely scattered hits. He has seven strikeouts. Edwards batted in all three runs and the score was 3 to 0. Wood pitched a good game, but Edwards had his eye on the ball as no other player, and batted out three safe batters with four trips to the pan. The batteries were: Fulton—Downs and Maybre, Brownsville—Wood and McCleish.

It has been about five weeks since the Paducah race track stands have had any sport at home, and this accounts for the large crowd. The track was in good shape for the races.

Work will begin Monday of excavating of Broadway between Ninth and Eleventh streets, and in a short time the bitthles workers will follow.

George Katterjohn has the sub-contract from the Southern Bitthles company for removing the dirt and he was begun with a force of men so that the already long delayed work will be rushed to completion.

As soon as Broadway is completed this work will begin on Jefferson street between Ninth and Eleventh streets.

Contractor H. M. Welkel had the contract for the concrete sidewalks and the curbing and gutters. This work was finally completed today, because Mr. Welkel has been delayed by a shipment of granite curbs that failed to arrive from Georgia. The concrete company will be ready to put in double tracking and the improvement will be a great one when the work is through.

NO SPEECHES

Hands-Off Policy in State Political Rows—Not Mixing Up in Any.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 14.—"Everything was harmonious, peaceful, and no one was told of my love and spunked." This was Judge Taft's gentle remark in concluding a detailed account of his all-day conference with Frank H. Hitchcock, Republican national chairman, and Arthur I. Voys, his chief of staff.

Chairman Hitchcock, announced after the first conference, which continued for three hours, that it could be stated in a formal and official manner that Mr. Taft would make no speeches outside the city of Chicago until during the campaign. On his way from Hot Springs to Cincinnati the last of the month Mr. Taft will make a side trip in Ohio, the arrangements for which have been completed but the details are withheld for the mixing in local political contentions he made on this trip. It was also officially announced that Mr. Taft would continue the policy he had already adopted and followed of not mixing in local political contentions in any state or of taking any part whatever in behalf of any candidate for nomination for a state office.

This announcement is intended as an answer first to the demand that Mr. Taft decide the merits of the contestants in the West Virginia split, and second, that he express a preference for or against Governor Hughes in the New York gubernatorial situation.

New York, Aug. 14.—The Harrisman steel cars are in the market for 6,000 steel cars. No order has been placed, but the car equipment companies have been notified that this amount represents the total of an order purchased by the Harrisman lines, and let more than half of the cars there have been used as mentioned in which the equipment companies may have their full competition between the companies to get to be best for the order, if it will be a matter for the Harrisman lines to place.

The estimated cost of the cars is $1,000,000. The Harrisman lines are expected that the cars will be ordered for the reason of more money all that the competition between the car equipment companies may result in a price.

He was a great lawyer, a bold statesman; had a clear head for business, and nothing could daunt him nor break his purpose. All his life he drank the generous creative juices of the malt.

And who will dare say that it weakened his will power or detracted from his success, his fame, his glory, and his might.

RECIPROCITY

UNCLE SAM AND NETHERLANDS MAKE CONCESSIONS.

In Return for American Reductions on Spirits Their Meat Schedules Are Reduced.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Lower rates on brands imported into the United States in exchange for lower rates on dutiable, salted pork and salted bacon, in the exchange made by the terms of the new treaty between the United States and the Netherlands, promulgated by President Roosevelt. We can buy our brands at a cheaper rate and the Dutch can buy our pork and bacon and have a little cheaper. If the middle man does not ask too much for his profit before it reaches the consumer.

By the terms of the treaty the Netherlands gets concessions only on one item in section 3 of the tariff law, brandy and other spirits manufactured or distilled from grain or other materials. The lower rate of $1.75 per proof gallon, which already had been conceded to Germany and France under reciprocal treaties, is now given to the Netherlands.

On the part of the Netherlands concessions are made from her already comparatively low general schedule. A rate of 75 of a florin per 100 kilos on mutton, salted pork and salted bacon, and on these articles when smoked or dried, a rate of one florin per 100 kilos is maintained. Also the Netherlands government concedes that the rate on earned meat shall continue to admit the American product at 1.6 and 8 florins per 100 kilos, "although," as they say, "under a strict application of the Netherlands law a rate of 25 florins per 100 kilos must be exacted on these commodities."

NO COMMENT ON BRYAN'S SPEECH

By Judge Taft at Present For Publication.

Fusion in Nebraska—Secretary of State Decides Against Roosevelt—Democratic and Populist

NAMES OF SAME CANDIDATES

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 11.—No comment for publication in newspapers on Mr. Bryan's acceptance speech he to be made to Judge Taft. This decision was announced by the Republican candidate even before he had had an opportunity to read Bryan's speech.

This reading, he said, he wished to do with great deliberation, and should its purpose make a reply necessary, it will be made the subject of a speech or included in a speech Judge Taft may make at some future time.

Representative W. P. Hepburn, of Iowa, who at the request of Speaker Cannon, is to spend most of his time in the east this summer giving personal attention to the construction of a new office building, is here for a day or two.

Hepburn has just returned from Iowa and is in a position to give Judge Taft first hand information on the situation of his state, particularly with reference to the changed conditions brought about by the death of Senator Allison. It is understood here that former Congressman Lacey and Governor Cummins will eventually be the opposing candidates for the senatorial vacancy.

For the present Hepburn regarded public discussion of the situation from him as inappropriate, although he predicted that the state would give Judge Taft a plurality of 80,000.

Roosevelt Lacer Again. Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 14.—Republican committeeman Victor Rosewater was again defeated in his struggle to destroy the fusion in Nebraska. Secretary of State Junkin ruling that Sophus Noble, of the Second congressional district, may be entered on the primary ballot as candidate for election on the Populist as well as on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Rosewater protested on the ground that the Populist party did not cast one per cent of the vote at the November election as required by law to secure representation on the ballot. This protest was overruled by the secretary of state and Noble will be placed as both Democratic and Populist on the ballot. The protest against Noble is the last to be decided, the fusion being permitted by the secretary in other protested cases.

Thanks It Saved His Life. Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia, and healer of weak lungs, it has no equal. BRYAN PRAISES REPUBLICANS.

THE LOUISVILLE HERALD DISSECTS HIS RECENT SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE.

In the Taft speech of acceptance was unique for its length and comprehensiveness, the Bryan speech must also be classed as unique, but for another reason. When before has a Democratic candidate for the presidency replied to a notification committee by taking his text from a Republican president and a Republican nominee, and giving it with approval of its contents?

And yet this is just what William Jennings Bryan does. After some platitudes concerning the binding nature of political platforming, he prefaces his program with an excerpt from one of President Roosevelt's messages dealing with the evils of predatory wealth, and follows it with another from the acceptance speech of Mr. Taft to the same effect. These excerpts are not quoted with the purpose of criticism or attacking them, but with the Nebraskaan's consent to the principle they lay down.

"This is the very outset Bryan preaches the light. He admits that the attitude of the present administration, as represented by its chief executive, is in line with all that he himself advocates as fundamental conviction, and concedes as much to Mr. Taft, the man who, in case of Republican success, will follow Mr. Roosevelt."

It is true that Mr. Bryan follows his quotations by an attack upon Republicanism, but it is an attack already robbed of its force by the preliminary admissions he is compelled to make. The method of criticism is one that has long been practiced by those who find themselves obliged by circumstances to attack an impracticable position. Reviewing Republican legislation of the past eight years, he asks, "and over again, why has nothing been done on this or that matter?" and meanwhile calmly ignores all that has been done.

The attempt to show that Republicans have neglected their duty to the people in the handling of these great questions arising out of the nation's rapid development falls pitifully flat. It is an easy matter to hold up a lofty ideal of what should be under a political millennium; but practical politicians are forever confronted with conditions, not theories. They must see things as they are, and make the best of situations always. If honest, clinging to the ideal, but working toward it by processes that are gradual in achievement rather than revolutionary.

This is exactly what Republicanism has been doing. Under its regime the country has made gigantic strides. With expansion of trade and the adoption of new methods of business, legitimate in themselves, but, like all other things, open to abuse, have arisen problems that have called for the treatment of statesmen. They have received this treatment. A statesman is one who asks a question in its broadest perspective, not merely a single side of it, and having thus gained a comprehensive view of the matter requiring attention, sets himself to meet its demands in such a manner as to conserve all proper interests, and at the same time secure the greatest good to the greatest number.

In this sense Bryan is not a statesman. He grasps a single angle of a big question. He fancies he sees a remedy, and immediately he is before the public in advocacy of the new nostrum. All efforts to show him that there are other angles is futile. He is obsessed by one idea, and that he adheres to, until a defeat at the polls, or some other effective expression of public opinion convinces him he is on the wrong track.

It was so with the free silver issue; it was so, more recently, with the proposal for government ownership of railways; it will be so with his bank guarantee plan, and other similar plans he has espoused.

Meantime under the leadership of Roosevelt, Republicanism has been given a program of progress that is wide in its sweep, wide enough, indeed to please both Democratic nominees for only lately Mr. Kern has expressed his approval of the Roosevelt policies. Taft has committed himself to their perpetuation. The program passed by logical succession to hands that are capable and that hold the confidence of the American people.

The trouble with Mr. Bryan is that he wants miracles to be wrought. He would have the action made over in a night. This may be a commendable ambition, but it is not practical. Real reforms are not achieved in this way. The Roosevelt program is bigger than the powers of any congress to grasp and effect in a brief period. It is not probable that the president himself hoped to accomplish all that he included in his policies before his regime was at an end. With far-reaching vision he has thought beyond the limitations of the average man. He has shown the qualities of a great executive in being always in advance of legislation.

Legislation must necessarily move slowly. When ideals of government come to be embodied in statutes greater precision of statement is needed than in compiling a party platform. A resolutions committee in twenty-four hours may draw up an outline of proposed reforms, and when it comes to making them laws it will find that more than one prolonged session is necessary.

It is at this point again that Mr. Bryan faces a situation which is absolutely beyond his control. He charges the senate and house of representatives under Republican rule with being non-progressive and reactionary, notwithstanding the fact that more practical legislation has been passed upon the statute books of the nation by Roosevelt congresses than by any other; but conceding for the sake of argument, that congress has failed to keep pace with the demands of the age for advanced lawmaking, how much better will the nation be with Bryan as president than with Taft, Bryan will find himself facing a Republican senate. This is inevitable. The human factor of partisan opposition will add to the immobility of the body. Its hands will be tied beyond the possibility of relief. Under these conditions of what value are all his inflated promises of achievement?

But with Taft at the helm of affairs a natural sympathy is at once created between the chief executive and congress. Like Roosevelt, too, he may find it impracticable to accomplish his aims in one sweep of revolutionary legislation; but by that gradual process through which permanent and satisfactory results are ever achieved, a Republican president and Republican congress will co-operate in working out, detail by detail, the vast program to which the party is committed. Nothing can be hoped from Bryan and a Republican senate; but much may be expected if you substitute Taft for the former.

So Bryan dreams of it. It is all a phantasmagoria; attractive enough in some of its details but hopelessly impossible of realization if entrusted to his hands.

We predict his speech will be a disappointment to his following. It is aimed at tearing down the Republican fabric, and is about as successful in this attempt as would be a volley of boiled peas in shaking the solid rock of Gibraltar. It makes no serious effort at construction, the hope of any such work being deferred by promise of a fuller treatment of issues in later speeches. It harps upon the note "Shall the people rule?" but overlooks the fact that the people are ruling, and that the popular will has twice deposed Mr. Bryan until for the high office he seeks.

As compared with Taft's masterly handling of the issues it is a vain and empty document. Not a single great problem is grappled with; not a sign is given that the man who utters its words has the ability to deal with the questions that confronts a president. It sounds like the barking of a very small dog at the heels of an elephant.

THAT HE WILL BE WHIPPED BY "NIGHT RIDERS."

Apprentice Work of Private Enemy—Two Husbandly Pious Men for Insulting Wives.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 14.—J. S. Northington, a farmer living near Garrettsburg, received a threatening letter signed, "Kentucky and Tennessee Night Riders." The letter referred to some trouble Mr. Northington had four years ago with a man who threshed his wheat crop and was docked on the settlement for wasting so much of the grain. The letter said that if the balance of the man's bill was not paid in thirty days Mr. Northington would be waited upon and whipped. The business matter referred to was known to but few people and had about been forgotten by Mr. Northington.

Two men who were walking along the road near Hans' Mill met Mrs. Will Dockery and Mrs. Albert Lindsay in a buggy and used insulting language to them. They reported the matter to their husbands, who found them soon afterward and gave them each a severe horsewhipping.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

County Court Clerk.
 The Sun is authorized to announce Hiram Smedley a candidate for reelection to the office of Clerk of the McCracken County Court subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Daily Thought.

Ask yourself this question: "Do I expect to have my friends more than I am willing to give?"

Congressman Ollie James said at St. John yesterday that "Kentucky will go Democratic if Willson's soldiers will let the people vote." The judge should charge the Crittenden grand jury to investigate "Our Ollie." He'll be talked about, if he isn't careful.

With conscientious vigor Dr. H. P. Sights, the new health officer, has set to work enforcing laws for the protection of life and health in the city, and his sanitary inspectors are kept busy carrying out his instructions. His insistence on the improvement of the Lee building's sanitary arrangements is commendable. If it is a menace to the health of the children and the city, lack of funds is no excuse. If excuses offered for failure to obey Dr. Sights' orders would satisfy the germs of diseases and cause them to suspend operations until such a time as citizens saw fit to take precautions, we should advise the doctor to go slow; but germs won't wait and after death it is too late. We are for the doctor in whatever he does for the benefit of Paducah, regardless of any abuse he will incur before he gets through.

COLLECTING POLL TAX.

Poll tax delinquents are put on notice that a collector is after them to enforce collections of revenue of which the city is in great need just now. The finance committee of the general council is authoritatively stated, will take under consideration some new method of collecting poll tax hereafter, and we are justified in assuming that the new method will be one designed to facilitate the collection of poll taxes before they are four or five years old. Property owners are compelled to pay their poll taxes, when they pay their property tax; but the others go uncollected, principally because citizens are not reminded. These 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1907 taxes are turned over to the city collector, we understand, as delinquents and he is allowed 50 cents apiece for collecting them. He then must employ someone to make the collections. Why could not the city simply employ someone, as the collector has Mr. Lehnhard, and give him a percent, or put a penalty on delinquents and give him the penalty? Thus the city could get the whole amount of the polls and collections could be enforced before the taxes are four years old. A collector of polls even before they become delinquents would facilitate collections.

THE FAITH OF BRYAN.

"Shall the people rule?" inquires William Jennings Bryan, and the simple directness of the question indicates the frankness of the soul that asks it. Nothing could be more touching than the obstinate faith of this one man, that some day, somehow, the people SHALL rule—and he will know the people rule, when they have elected William Jennings Bryan president. For twelve long years he has clung to this faith, and it has not been misplaced. In his very first campaign the people were with Bryan—the common people, the great masses of plain people—these were all with Bryan—and if enough of them had voted for him, nothing could have prevented his election. In his second campaign the people were with him again, only more so. And again the scepter was wrested from the hands of freemen by the pertinacious loyalty of the majority to William McKinley.

As Mr. Bryan declared in his victory of the campaign of 1896, recorded on page 625 of "The First Battle": "In spite of the efforts of the administration and its supporters; in spite of the threats of money loaners at home and abroad; in spite of the coercion employed by corporate employers; in spite of an enormous Republican campaign fund; in spite of the influence of a hostile daily press, bimetalism has ALMOST triumphed in its first great fight!"

See: Bryan knew that all he lacked that time was votes. As he flung out again his great defiance:—"You shall NOT crucify us on a cross of gold; you shall NOT place a crown of thorns upon our (composite) brow"—he looked ahead. "The year 1900 is not far away," he said on page 626. "Before that year arrives the evil effects of a gold standard will be even more evident than they are now and the people will then join with us in the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1."

"Let the advocate of bimetalism not despair; nothing is ever settled, until it is settled right."
 Alas! The things that have been settled, and settled finally, before and since then! There was Grover Cleveland, the only Democrat elected to the presidency in 40 years. He was read out of his party, and that settled him. Then came Bryan and free silver, denounced by Col. Henry Waterson; who shouted for joy when Alton B. Parker in 1904 stood on a single gold standard platform—and free silver was settled right. Now comes Bryan with the "people's rule" slogan, and Waterson denounces Parker as a doggone shlepoke, that belongs to August Belmont and Tommy Ryan, and that settles him.

Issues have come and gone, but Bryan's faith goes on forever. We have nothing left of the free silver issue but "The First Battle" and "Coin" Harvey's little volume. After that came—let us see—Ah, yes! "Imperialism." Do you all remember the bitter campaign of 1900, and the terrible cloud that seemed hanging over the nation? All that is left to remind us of "Imperialism" is a shaft in the cemetery at Canton, Ohio, inscribed:

To the memory of

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

And so, "Imperialism" was settled. Next it was Alton B. Parker. Even Mr. Bryan will admit that he was settled right.
 All these old things have been settled, it seems, once for all; and instead of bimetalism, imperialism, free trade and the crown of thorns—Behold! It is Mr. Bryan who has never been settled right, and keeps bobbing up every four years. But he'll be settled right this time.

Will Vote on Prohibition.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 14.—The Democratic convention consumed the entire time in a discussion of the platform and the injection of the Halley issue into the convention by Congressman Randall, who, in offering an amendment to the platform, caused a bitter fight, in which the Halley people won out by a close vote.
 A text vote just previous to adjournment shows that the plank in the platform pledging the legislature to call a special election in order to give the people of the state an opportunity to vote on state-wide prohibition is sure to carry.

The other principal plank in the platform are those declaring for a guarantee of state bank deposits and a revision of the civil and criminal procedure.

The Port of Missing Men.

Armitage was thinking rapidly of something he had suddenly resolved to say to Captain Claiborne. He knew that the Claibornes were a family of distinction. The father was an American diplomat and lawyer of wide reputation. The family stood for the best of which America is capable, and they were somewhat bound to the American capital, where their social position and the father's fame made them conspicuous.

Armitage put down his cigar and bent toward Claiborne, speaking with quiet directness.
 "Captain Claiborne, I was introduced to you at Geneva by Mr. Singleton. You may have observed me several times previously at Venice, Rome, Florence, Paris, Berlin. I certainly saw you. I shall not deny that I intentionally followed you, nor—"

John Armitage smiled, then grew grave again—"can I make any adequate apology for doing so?"
 Claiborne looked at Armitage wondering. The man's attitude and tone were wholly serious and compelling respect.

Claiborne nodded and threw away his cigar that he might give his whole attention to what Armitage might have to say.

"A man does not like to have his sister forming the acquaintance of persons who are not properly vouched for. Except for Singleton you know nothing of me, and Singleton knows very little of me indeed."

Claiborne nodded. He felt the color creeping into his cheeks consciously as Armitage touched upon this matter.
 "I speak to you as I do because it is your right to know who and what I am, for I am not on the Klug Edward by accident, but by intention, and I am going to Washington because your sister lives there."

Claiborne smiled in spite of himself.
 "But, my dear sir, this is most extraordinary! I don't know that I care to hear any more. By listening I seem to be encouraging you to follow us. It's altogether too unusual. It's almost preposterous."

And Dick Claiborne frowned severely, but Armitage still met his eyes gravely.

"It's only decent for a man to give his references when it's natural for them to be required. I was educated at Trinity college, Toronto. I spent a year at the Harvard law school. And I am not a beggar utterly. I own a ranch in Montana that actually pays and a thousand acres of the best wheat land in Nebraska. At the Bronx Loan and Trust company in New York I have securities to a considerable amount—I am perfectly willing that any one who is at all interested should inquire of the trust company officers as to my standing with them. If I were asked to state my occupation, I should have to say that I am a cattle herder—what you call a cowboy. I can make my living in the practice of the business almost anywhere from New Mexico north to the Canadian line. I flatter myself that I am pretty good at it," and John Armitage smiled and took a cigarette from a box on the table and lighted it.

Dick Claiborne was greatly interested in what Armitage had said, and he struggled between an inclination to encourage further confidence and a feeling that he should, for Shirley's sake, make it clear to this young stranger that it was of no consequence to any member of the Claiborne family who he was or what might be the extent of his lands or the unimpeachable character of his investments. But it was not so easy to turn aside a fellow who was so big of frame and apparently so sane and so steady of purpose as this Armitage. And there was, too, the further consideration that while Armitage was volunteering gratuitous information and assuming an interest in his affairs by the Claibornes that was wholly unjustified, there was also the other side of the matter: that his explanation proceeded from motives of delicacy that were praiseworthy. Dick was puzzled and plumed besides to find that his resources as a big protecting brother were so soon exhausted. What Armitage was asking was the right to seek his sister Shirley's hand in marriage, and the thing was absurd. Moreover, who was John Armitage?

The question started Claiborne into a realization of the fact that Armitage had volunteered considerable information without at all answering this question. "Dick Claiborne was a humorist and curious."
 "Pardon me?" he asked, "but are you an Englishman?"
 "I am not," answered Armitage. "I have been so long in America that I feel as much at home there as anywhere—but I am neither English nor American by birth. I am, on the other hand—"

He hesitated for the barest second, and Claiborne was sensible of an intensification of interest. Now at last there was to be a revelation that amounted to something.
 "On the other hand," Armitage repeated, "I was born at Fontainebleau, where my parents lived for only a few months, but I do not consider that that fact makes me a Frenchman. My mother is dead. My father died—very recently. I have been in America enough to know that a foreigner is often under suspicion—particularly if he has a title. My distinction is that I am a foreigner—without one!" John Armitage laughed.

"It is, indeed, a real merit," declared Dick, who felt something was expected of him. In spite of himself he found much to like in John Armitage. He particularly despised sham and pretense, and he had been won by the evident sincerity of Armitage's wish to appear well in his eyes.
 "And now," said Armitage, "I assure you that I am not in the habit of talking so much about myself—and if you will overlook this offense I promise not to bore you again."

"I have been interested," remarked Dick. "And," he added, "I cannot do less than thank you, Mr. Armitage."
 Armitage began talking of the American army—its strength and weaknesses—with an intimate knowledge that greatly surprised and interested the young officer, and when they separated presently it was with a curious mixture of liking and mystification that Claiborne reviewed their talk.

The next day brought heavy weather, and only hardheaded seagoers were abroad. Armitage, breakfasting late, was not satisfied that he had acted wisely in speaking to Captain Claiborne; but he had, at any rate, eased in some degree his own conscience, and he had every intention of seeing all that he could of Shirley Claiborne during these days of their fellow voyaging.

LAWSUIT OVER DIAMOND FOUND IN CHICKEN'S CRAW.

Springfield, Mo., Aug. 14.—Three or four months ago T. G. Goldsmith, a former county judge, lost the diamond from a finger ring. The stone was valued at $200. Three weeks ago Mrs. W. A. Ball, while dressing a chicken, found a gem in the fowl's craw. She took the stone to a jeweler to have it examined. Goldsmith happened along and claimed the gem on account of its peculiar size and weight. Mrs. Ball brought suit in replevin against Goldsmith to recover the stone. The chicken which swallowed the diamond was owned by Mrs. Ball and she lives nearly a mile from the spot where Goldsmith lost the stone. Goldsmith contends that there is not another diamond in existence of the odd weight and shape of the stone owned by him, and he declares the gem taken from the chicken's craw belongs to him.

HOT-WEATHER CONSTIPATION

People should be very careful at this time of the year not to become constipated, and if they do, to attend to it promptly. Many people have a special tendency to constipation in hot weather, owing to the sudden change in food and to the fact that the natural moisture of the body that in winter remains within and helps to digest the food, leaves the system in the summer in the form of perspiration. And as the heat thins the food and the water, a constipated person is especially liable to a feverish condition. It is, therefore, very important, in both young and old that the constipation should be immediately relieved. The best way to do this is not, as some suppose, by eating the milder food and making the matter worse, nor by taking salts and laxative waters, which, as all who have tried them know, give but temporary relief, but, on the contrary, you should use a tried-and-true remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which acts quickly and mildly and which relieves permanently so that a steady and lasting cure results. A bottle can be bought of any druggist, in sizes of 50 cents and $1.00, and this small sum will save you and your family a world of trouble. It is the best remedy you can take for any summer digestive trouble. You are guaranteed that it will do what is claimed. It will cure the constipation, clear the head, restore your appetite and sleep and make you feel like your old self again. Those who have not yet tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and would like to make a trial of it, can do so free of charge by sending their address for a sample bottle to PEPSIN SYRUP CO., Monticello, Ill.

BARBECUE AT ST. JOHN'S IS A SUCCESS AS USUAL

Many Paducahans and candidates returned from St. John's last night after a pleasant day at the picnic. A heavy rain fell about noon and made the picnicers restless for shelter, but the shower soon stopped, and dinner was finished. Congressman Ollie M. James was the whole show in the speaking line, and he was introduced by County Attorney Alben Barkley with a neat little speech. Fully 1,000 people attended the barbecue and the managers of the picnic were gratified in their efforts to furnish every comfort.

According to the advance sale of tickets there will not be a vacant seat in any of the coaches.

The servant problem, like the poor, is ever with us; it is a difficult as well as an exceedingly annoying situation to meet and its solution so far, has only been met partially by some of the wiser and more enterprising housewives who, in order to make themselves more independent and to provide the means whereby household duties and cares may be made less burdensome, have resorted to the use of GAS RANGES for relief.

BACON SETTLES CHURCH CLAIMS

Disputes in Porto Rico Over Catholic Property.

Government Will Pay Stated Amounts for Certain Lands and Buildings.

SETTLEMENT FOR $300,000.

San Juan, Aug. 14.—After having satisfactorily settled the questions in the dispute between the federal government and the Catholic church in Porto Rico, arising out of the control of the estate formerly owned by the Dominican and Franciscan orders valued at $1,000,000, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, has sailed for New York.

Under the agreement reached the federal government will obtain, subject to the approval of congress, the control of the Santo Domingo convent building and its lands, and the land occupied by the infantry barracks, paying therefor $120,000.

The insular government will receive, if the agreement is sanctioned by the insular legislature, the market place, San Francisco barracks and insane asylum and the land surrounding it, paying $180,000 for them in three installments.

The church in addition to the money consideration, will obtain, under agreement, the chapel and 62 acres of land near San Juan. This disposes of the last of the church claims.

The question has caused a protracted litigation and discussion in congress. The insular courts have decided that some points were in favor of both parties and appeals were taken to the United States supreme court. These appeals will now be withdrawn.

Many Years in Congress. Washington, Aug. 11.—Former Senator Roger Q. Mills, of Texas, a native born Kentuckian, served 27 years in congress at a period when the Democrats were often in power and contributed toward much of the wise legislation passed in the Cleveland administration and the Democratic congresses controlled by that party.

His specialty was the tariff and as chairman of the ways and means committee he framed the Mills bill in the Fifty-third congress, where the senate killed the measure because of its sterling Democratic.

THE OLD CAPITOL

TALK OF APPELLATE COURT DECIDING NOT TO MOVE.

Would Make an Ideal Site for the High Court in State and Is Convenient to Lawyers.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 11.—The putting in of new concrete steps and concrete floor to the portion of the old state house has revived the talk as to the feasibility of using the old building as a permanent home for the court of appeals and the law library. Instead of moving that body to the new state house. The old building is a splendid specimen of ancient architecture, with its immense archway, columns and rare stone archway, and there seems to be a general desire that the legislature should make some provision for its preservation. The court of appeals has taken no step in this direction, but it is understood that all the judges will favor the plan of remaining in the old building. If the question of convenience to the lawyers who practice before the court is considered, nearly every lawyer in the state will favor the old building. Of course, a special room for the court has been discussed in the new state house, but if the present senate chamber in the old building were slightly remodeled to make one of the finest court rooms in the United States, while the clock tower could be used for constitutional cases and the representative hall could be used as the main room for the law library or for the clerk's office.

It is 4½ blocks that a concerted effort will be made to have the "old capitol" remain in the old building, but the question of remaining will rest with the court last fall as a lawyer and today "if the court wants to stay here it will stay, for it will have no last say on any proposition to move them to move into the new state house."

Some Old Photographs. There are six rare, life-size portraits of Henry Clay, William H. Harrison, Isaac Shelby, Daniel Boone, Simon Kenton and Lafayette in the present senate and house of representatives, and Frankfort people are wondering who will be done away with when the new state house is completed. One of these portraits, that of Isaac Shelby, the first governor of Kentucky, has a peculiar history. Many years ago there was a dentist, Frankfort named Neek, who was also a portrait painter. He painted a large picture depicting a little scene—the sacrifice of Isaac by Abraham. The picture was displayed, but no one would buy it; so Neek, being an economical man and not wishing to waste so large a piece of valuable canvas, just turned it over and painted a splendid portrait of Governor Shelby on the other side. The legislature made an appropriation and bought the portrait from Neek, had it framed and it is still hanging in the senate chamber, with the picture of Abraham offering up Isaac on the other side of the canvas. This is probably the only instance on record where a canvas with a picture on both sides was ever displayed in a state house or other public building. If the old state house is to be occupied by the court of appeals permanently, these old portraits will likely remain in their present places, but if the building is used for some other purpose, they will probably be turned over to the State Historical society, as they would not harmonize with the modern fixtures in the new state house.

The Cameracolor. It is known that the art of photography dates back as far as the early Egyptians, and motion pictures in a variety of eras have had their origin decades ago. Despite this it was not until the latter part of the last century that motion pictures, through the medium of magic lanterns and the stereopticon, came into vogue in the United States. Over a score of years have passed in their development, which is now realized in the Cameracolor.

There is nothing done today in the theatrical stage or the public platform that they cannot faithfully reproduce to the slightest sound and movement, and they represent by their advantages in preservation and multiplication. Comedy and music will reign in the bill for the coming week at The Kentucky theatre with performances every afternoon and evening.

NEW ZEALANDERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Sailors Are Praised by Mayor of Auckland for Good Conduct—Jackets Spent Day

THEATERS AND IN BASEBALL.

Auckland, Aug. 11.—The officers of the American fleet entertained two thousand New Zealanders aboard the battleship Louisiana. The officers showed their visitors every part of the great fighting machine and explained to them in detail the working of the intricate mechanisms.

The mayor of Auckland has written American Consul Brickett extending congratulations on the order's conduct and courtesy of the crews of the battleships. Their behavior, the mayor says, had been most exemplary and reflected the highest credit on the fleet.

Shore leave was given to as many enlisted men as it was possible to spare from the ships. Hundreds of them were again taken to visit nearby points of interest and later were entertained at luncheon while others preferred to promenade through the heart of the city, and attend the theaters.

Several high-spirited baseball games were organized and the New Zealanders who attended these were delighted with their introduction to the great American national game.

Sergeant Gourley's Race Worked and in Thirty Minutes He Had His Man.

At 11 thirty minutes Sam Schofield, a young negro from Nashville, was arrested last night and placed in jail by Police Sergeant Charlie Gourley. Chief Charles McNitt notified Lieutenant Butler that the negro was wanted on a charge of housebreaking and Sergeant Gourley was given the job.

At the first attempt to locate him Sergeant Gourley went to a house at Eighth and Harris streets and inquired for a woman that had been shot. It happened that Schofield was the fellow that came to the door and was just expatiating that it was a false rumor, and all the while the policeman was going over the description of the negro. Satisfied that he was right, Sergeant Gourley nabbed Schofield and took him to jail. Chief McNitt came to Paducah today and returned with his prisoner.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that book to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John F. Fife, one of the Editorial Staff of THE ELECTRIC MEDICAL REVIEW, says of Unicorn root (Helleborus Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator... makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. He continues: 'In Helleborus we have a medicinal which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent.' Dr. Fife further says: 'The following are among the leading indications for Helleborus (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic condition of the reproductive system; ovarian, menstrual depression and irregularity, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive system; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flowing), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppression) or absent monthly periods; aching from or accompanying an atonic condition of the digestive organs; and chronic fibroid (habitual dragging sensation in the extreme lower part of the abdomen).

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no woman can afford to neglect the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helleborus, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb, in all catarrhal conditions, and general debility. It is used in the treatment of the following conditions: Menorrhagia (flowing), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppression) or absent monthly periods; aching from or accompanying an atonic condition of the digestive organs; and chronic fibroid (habitual dragging sensation in the extreme lower part of the abdomen).

In relation to its general effects on the system there is no medicine to use which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debility states.

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: "It is valuable in uterine hemorrhages, menorrhagia (flowing), and general debility. It is used in the treatment of the following conditions: Menorrhagia (flowing), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppression) or absent monthly periods; aching from or accompanying an atonic condition of the digestive organs; and chronic fibroid (habitual dragging sensation in the extreme lower part of the abdomen).

Dr. Fife's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Bryan on the Confederate Soldier, From Tom Watson's "Jeffersonian".

New York City, July 15, 1908.
Hon. Thomas E. Watson, Thomson, Ga.

My Dear Sir: As to the surprising position taken by Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, in the speakership fight of 1891, and the equally surprising recovery of memory. My recollections of the business are much less confused, I fancy, than are Mr. Bryan's own—judging from what the papers today report of him. Not that my dimness on Mr. Bryan's part in this connection excites my wonder. I was in Washington as the correspondent of a newspaper; Mr. Bryan was there as a politician. Newspaper men are trained to remember; their trade is to recollect; politicians are trained to forget, and to hope that others will forget. Wherefore it now happens that while the affair in its details has slipped somewhat from Mr. Bryan, it remains firmly clear as any cameo. Nor shall I mention at this crisis any interest that might move Mr. Bryan to distort or warp the story, nor submit the absence of such interest in myself. The one would be dragging discussion into corners unbecoming a candidate and a gentleman, while the other for reasons no less cogent might find conviction as bad taste.

Concerning Mr. Bryan's wasted vote, of which I shall presently speak, curious as to such waste are referred to the census rolls, and to the newspapers of that day. In what follows I give a brief relation of the matter:

Mr. Bryan came to Washington in November, 1891, and aligned himself with the Democrats. Before congress convened, the Democrats held a caucus to select a candidate for speaker. That fight for a speakership was supposed to be a fight for a presidency, a tariff policy, and much else tremendous to government. There were Messrs. Mills, of Texas; Crisp, of Georgia; McMillan, of Tennessee; Hatch, of Missouri; and Springer, of Illinois, in the scramble. Mr. Mills was the Cleveland candidate, Mr. Crisp the Gorman candidate, Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Gorman were rivals for a white house nomination, and the possession of the house was thought by each to be important.

The battle began. Mr. Bryan voted for Mr. Springer. The war staggered on for hours; there came halloo on the basis of ballot. Mr. Hatch withdrew, and went into the caucus to vote for Mr. Crisp. Mr. Springer withdrew, and went into the caucus to vote for Mr. Crisp. Mr. Crisp won in the last of it by the merest fragment of a majority—two votes, I think.

As related, Mr. Bryan voted from the first for Mr. Springer. When Mr. Springer withdrew, he still voted for Mr. Springer. That gentleman was himself voting for Mr. Crisp; he had withdrawn his name; he was no longer a candidate. Yet to a final roll call, which gave victory by a brace of votes to Mr. Crisp, Mr. Bryan went shooting his lonely arrow in the useless air for Mr. Springer. In brief, he threw away his vote in a struggle where thrones and scepters were the prizes contended for.

It was two months later, I should say, when I one day asked Mr. Bryan why he thus threw himself away. He was not so old as he is now, and hadn't—as he has since—acquired the great art of forgetting to sublimity.

"Did you ever stop to think," demanded Mr. Bryan, and his look was deep and fove. "Did you ever stop to think that both Mills and Crisp were ex-Confederates?"

"What difference should that make?" I asked.

"It might make a deal of difference," said Mr. Bryan. "In the country I come from. For an old-soldier element along the Platte with the record of having voted for an ex-Confederate."

There was more. I remember I congratulated Mr. Bryan upon a prudence that kept his prospects of politics so carefully in mind, and compared it with the purblind recklessness of such as Messrs. Andrews and Hoar and Williams, of Massachusetts; Cummings, of New York; Holman and Shively, of Indiana; Cable, of Illinois, in any naught of his own end. Mr. Springer, one and all of whom, while as much surrounded by an "old-soldier element" at home as was he himself, had not hesitated to be for either Mr. Mills or Mr. Crisp. There our discussion ended. No I do not seem to give it word for word. It was in no sort confidential, and I put most of it in print at the time.

Upon being elevated to the speakership, Mr. Crisp named Mr. Bryan on the ways and means—an important assignment. This struck me as strange, considering how Mr. Bryan hadn't voted for Mr. Crisp, and that dozens who had were eager applicants for the place.

The mystery of that ways and means appointment was laid bare to me by General O'Farrell, of Virginia, one of Mr. Crisp's lieutenants in the vaucous war. It was privately understood, he said, that in event of a tie between Mr. Crisp and Mr. Mills, Mr. Bryan would take a chance on that "old-soldier element" and vote for Mr. Crisp. Unless he were absolutely needed, however, he preferred to keep his record pure and free of every ex-Confederate taint.

"And," as General O'Farrell convincingly put it in conclusion, "of course the great thing after all was to keep him from going to Mr. Mills. That, with the added understanding that his vote was to be Crisp's, should it be necessary in order to name him, was everything we could ask. Practically, it was the same as though he were one of us; and so, when Mr. Springer at the time he came over spoke of him (Bryan) for a place on the ways and means, we didn't hesitate to make the trade."

All of which displays the acumen of Mr. Bryan, who was able to be for a man while not appearing to support him and earn a high house position without seeming to work for it. So victorious a scheme would have blushed a Mazzini, adorned a Kitchener! At one fell swoop, Mr. Bryan escapes that damning "recap" of "having voted for an ex-Confederate" and leaves himself saved, his transcendent merit to account for a house eminence to which he is triumphantly boosted.

Were one disposed to severity one might urge that, in what Mr. Bryan is quoted by the papers as saying, "slippery gentleman shows neither ingenuous or frank," he states that he "voted for Mr. Crisp as speaker." He did, when the formal vote was taken in the house. Every Democrat present on that house occasion voted for Mr. Crisp. If you except the disgruntled Mr. Mills, who maintained a sore and sulky silence.

Mr. Bryan says he "voted for Mr. Crisp in caucus." He did, but it was in the caucus held in 1893. Mr. Crisp was speaker twice. At the second caucus called just before congress convened in 1893—it was the extra session ordered by Mr. Cleveland—there existed no opposition to Mr. Crisp. His was the only name; his selection took place by acclamation. Also, in that second caucus, either because there was no roll call to make "a record," or his fears of "an old-soldier element" has measurably subsided, Mr. Bryan did vote for Mr. Crisp.

But in the first caucus—the caucus of 1891—the caucus in which upon a final roll call Mr. Crisp defeated Mr. Mills, Mr. Bryan from beginning to end gave his vote for Mr. Springer. Albert, the later amiable gentleman, during the last of it, had withdrawn his candidacy, and was himself upon the floor, red carnation and all, voting hard for Mr. Crisp.

Mr. Bryan is one who, finding himself unable to buck the center, seeks to go "round the ends. But if the papers, putting questions, bear the above in mind and trim the sail of inquiry to match therewith, he will confess—for he must so confess—that in the Mills-Crisp caucus of 1891 he was at special pains to fire nothing but blank cartridges. Any who rode foremost in that war are dead and under the grasses—Crisp, Springer, Hatch, Cummings, O'Farrell, Wheeler, Kigore, English, Culbertson, Herbert, Helman, the roll is long. But many remain—Bailey, Cable, Catchings, Tucker, Tharney, McGann, Dearmand—and all of whom should be able to correct Mr. Bryan in case his memory takes to crippling down. And then, too, as I've said, there are those caucus rolls and newspaper files.

When the papers have brought Mr. Bryan to admit that, as above described, he threw away his caucus vote in 1891, should he still succeed in forgetting that such throwing away was because he feared to "go back to an old-soldier element along the Platte with the record of having voted for an ex-Confederate," they must ask him: What then was the reason? He threw his vote away; that, at least, is sure. And folk don't throw their votes away, in a contest over a speakership, in any spirit of facetiousness or chance-blown caprice. Why, then, did Mr. Bryan so play the caucus prodigal? If "an old-soldier element" an "ex-Confederate," in terrifying conjunction, were not the argument, what was? Also, if Mr. Bryan, in answering the latter, can frame a reply that shall so much as even resemble the reasonable, I pledge myself to admit with fullest apology that it is my memory not his which has blundered and failed miserably to keep its feet.

SECOND VICTORY

FOR "DR. FIZZ," A. M. LEAVISON & CO.'S POPULAR DRINK.

Case Against T. H. Reed for Selling It on Sunday Admitted in the Police Court.

A. M. Leavison & company won another signal victory in the police court this morning for their popular soft drink, "Mr. Fizz," when in the case of T. H. Reed, of Ninth and Lloyd streets, who was arrested for selling the beverage on Sunday, the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. The evidence proved there is no alcohol in the drink, and therefore it is no violation to sell it on Sunday, nor is city license necessary for its sale.

In the case against Thomas Cole a few days ago the same verdict was rendered and the drink declared a non-intoxicant, as in this case. "Dr. Fizz" is one of the best sellers Leavison & company have, and the makers contend, as the evidence in these two cases clearly indicated, and there is no alcohol in the drink, and that it is purely a soft drink.

WIN IN TEXAS

ANTI-SUBMISSION MAN IS MADE
CHAIRMAN STATE COMMITTEE.

The Plank as Passed Leaves Prohibition to the Vote of People of State.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 14.—The submissalists won a complete victory in the state Democratic convention, although to bring this about they gave their support to the anti-submission candidate for chairman of the state executive committee, A. B.
Story. In return for this the anti-submitters withdrew the resolution incorporated in the platform providing that the legislature be accorded the privilege to vote on the submission question according to the sentiment of their immediate constituents on the proposition instead of being governed by the vote in the state. This was the greatest victory, and on which the convention had its greatest fight.

All state officers elected in the recent Democratic primaries were formally nominated in the convention.
With the exception of the nominating speech for governor, all speeches of this character were excluded by agreement.

James H. Robertson, of Austin, fit for is to give the undertaker a job.

who placed Governor Campbell in nomination two years ago, again nominated him. The governor was indorsed by a rising vote, following which he addressed the convention at length, saying that if elected he would carry out all of the platform demands.

After disposing of some minor routine affairs, the convention adjourned sine die.

MRS. COLLIER ACCUSED OF DEFRAUDING HOTEL.

New York, Aug. 14.—Louise Allen Collier, wife of William Collier, the actor, was arrested at the Pennsylvania terminal in Jersey City as she was alighting from an Atlantic City train accompanied by a maid and two diminutive dogs. The charge against Mrs. Collier is that of attempting to defraud the Grand Atlantic hotel at Atlantic City out of $42.50. Mrs.
Collier furnished ball in $500.

Deputy Jailer Roeder.

T. L. Roeder, deputy city jailer, is ill again and off duty for a few days.
His wound, that was caused by the accidental discharge of his pistol, has made him weak, and although he has been able to work his condition has become a little worse. And his doctor advised him to stay in until he regained his strength. Elwood Neel, deputy United States marshal, is temporarily filling the place.

About the only thing some men are fit for is to give the undertaker a job.

Tobacco Market Better.
Mayfield, Ky., Aug. 14.—The tobacco market has picked up slightly, and local buyers today bought 32

hogsheads from the association, buyers representing the trusts were here today, but did not make any purchases. The tobacco sold today was of the low grade.

At Murray.
Murray, Ky., Aug. 14. (Special)—
Oscar Hank, buyer for the American Smiff company, bought 4 hogsheads of tobacco here yesterday.

Mayfield Tobacco.
Since our last report 32 hogsheads of tobacco have been sold. Ligon Bros. 16; H. F. Wright, 14, and 2 hogsheads to others, says the Messenger. The prices, number and prices

722 at $10.50; 662 at $9; 223 at go, No. 382 at $9; 285 at $8; 416 at

627 at $8; 434 at $9; 683 at $8;
693 at $9.

G. A. Wilson, prizer, Sedalia, Mo.
144 at $8.

These 32 hogsheads will average about 1,500 pounds each at 9 cents and will bring into circulation over $3,000.

The graders came down here this week and regraded about 500 hogheads by reducing the schedule prices from 50 to $2.50.

It is said that the schedule prices will have to be reduced on probably 2,000 hogsheads before the tobacco at Mayfield will sell.

It is said by those who are in a position to know that the schedule prices at this place as well as others were fixed too high at the beginning and before the tobacco can sell they will have to be reduced. Since this reduction was made about 65 hogsheads have been sold, which will amount in cash to something like $7,000.

Mud Spoiled Auto Trip.

To bring back to Paducah an automobile that was mired in the mud, Louis Pelter and William Green left
this morning for Dawson Springs.
Last week they left in Mr. Pelter's machine and went to Caseyville by boat. Then made a trip among the coal mines, and reached Madisonville in splendid shape. At Madisonville the country was blessed with such rains as Paducah has had this week.
The engine ran well, but the auto went in mud up to the hub, and the two Paducahans went in a mud hole as fast as they fled the machine out.

When Dawson Springs was reached they were tired out, and the machine was put in a garage and Messrs.
Green and Pelter came home on the train. With a fair run of good weather they expect to make the run overland to Paducah in two days.

Professor Ross to Return.

Superintendent J. A. Carnegie received a letter today from Prof. J. T.
Ross, principal of the Jefferson building, who has been on a several weeks'
stay in Salt Lake City with relatives.
Professor Ross has been in excellent health while in Utah, and would have remained with relatives until September had the news not reached him that his home had been entered by burglars. He will leave Salt Lake in a few days and arrive home next week some time. Included with the letter were newspaper clippings, giving an account of $250,000 worth of bonds being sold for the benefit of Salt Lake's new school buildings.
